We care

We care for those who care about others. Our aim is to make the best workwear for all the people within healthcare - the people that care for others every day. For us it is important that they have functional and comfortable workwear that they feel good in.

We know that every small step count and together, we can make a change.

We take responsibility for reducing our impact on the environment

Our mission to care goes much further than this. We also do our best to take care of people, the society, and the environment around us.

As a company with an intercontinental supply chain, we have a responsibility to make sure that our business does not harm the people who help make our products, and that we do everything we can to minimize our environmental footprint.

It is about choosing good quality materials that make the garments last longer so that the impact on the environment of every product we make is spread out over a long time. It is about changing unsustainable materials and fibers to more sustainable ones, of choosing the ways of transport that does the least harm and being innovative and always have this at the top of our agenda in everything we do. It is also to contribute to a sustainable society with projects and initiatives, helping our customers to find the right clothes for work and to give advice on how to best take care and manage the clothes so that they last longer.

KEEP AN EYE ON THESE ICONS!

In the catalog we have marked the garments that are made from recycled materials, which means that the material that has once been produced gets a new chance. By making conscious choices when buying clothes, we can all contribute to a more sustainable future for our planet.

Global Organic Textile Standard

GOTS is recognized as the world leader processing standard for textiles made from organic fibres. The certification places high demands on compliance with social and environmental criteria along the entire supply chain. GOTS requires as standard that at least 95% of the fibers in the garment are organic and that the organic fibers are separated from the conventional fibers at all stages of production. When you buy GOTS-certified textiles, you can feel secure that the products do not contain chemicals and other harmful substances, that the textiles are organic and of high quality, and that it is a product where all actors in the process have taken social and environmental responsibility.

Lyocell

Lyocell is a so-called regenerat fiber that is produced from cellulose from fast-growing types of wood such as e.g. eucalyptus and beech. The material is known for its soft feel, breathability and ability to absorb moisture, making the garments comfortable to wear.

Lyocell is an environmentally-friendly material, because it produced with a closed circular production process that minimizes waste and chemical emissions. The production of yocell also requires less water and energy than the production of cotton.

Product information

FABRIC COMPOSITION

Durability, easy care and consistency of shape; these all depend on the choice of fabric and its composition.

100% POLYESTER. Of all materials, synthetic materials are easiest to care for. Garments made of 100% polyester dry very quickly after washing and never need ironing. Besides this, no other material is as durable, nor as good at retaining shape and colour. On the other hand, clothing worn next to the body should really be made of natural materials, in order to compensate for the reduced capacity for absorbing moisture and for heat insulation.

65/35% POLYESTER/COTTON. A material that contains enough polyester to ensure ease of care, durability, shape-retention and fastness of colour. The cotton element makes the fabric softer and provides a certain capacity for the absorption and release of excess warmth.

50/50% POLYESTER/COTTON. A mixture of fibres that combines the benefits of both the cotton and the polyester. In simple terms, this makes for a light and durable material that retains the soft feel of cotton. It is still the case that the polyester is better at preserving the colours, while the garment is more resistant to creasing and easier to care for than an equivalent made purely of cotton.

50/50% LYOCCELL/POLYESTER. A fibre blend that combines the best properties of both lyocell and polyester. The material is light and durable thanks to the polyester, and has a comfortable, luxurious feel thanks to the lyocell. The lyocell also gives the garment a nice drape and gloss, while the polyester retains colour better, makes the garment more wrinkle-resistant and helps it to keep its shape.

60/40% COTTON/POLYESTER. A quality that is very close to that of pure cotton. This makes for soft and comfortable garments that allow the release of most of any excess warmth. But there are still a few important differences. The polyester means that the fabric is easy to care for, durable and crease-resistant. It will also retain its colour for longer than an equivalent garment made purely of cotton.

100% COTTON. It doesn't get more comfortable than this. Pure cotton is a wonderful fabric to wear next to the skin. It has a large capacity to absorb and release the majority of any excess warmth; a quality that helps you to feel clean and fresh for longer. Dry cotton has an isolating effect that makes it pleasant in both cold and warm environments. All of our cotton fabrics are treated so as to make them as easy to care for as possible. Most garments require, however, a certain amount of ironing. Bear in mind that cotton fabrics can shrink by between 2 and 6%.

WASH CORRECTLY

In order to preserve the special qualities of each fabric, you should carefully follow the symbols that indicate the care instructions for the garment. These are included on the labels inside your garment. If you are unsure, you will find the explanation in the table below.

- Do not mix white or light coloured garments with strong colours.
- Heavily soiled items should never be washed together with light coloured garments.
- Never wash towelling, socks or similar together with woven materials.
- Leaving items to soak is always risky – they can lose their colouring.
- Never leave anything in soak for as long as overnight – you should preferably use your washing machine's soak programme.
- Special stain removers should always be applied prior to washing.
- Turn all garments inside-out; colours and fabric surfaces will be preserved for longer.
- Empty all pockets. Close zips and Velcro fastenings.
- Do not wash at a temperature that is too low! If the washing symbol indicates 60°C, you should not wash it at 40°C just to be cautious. Colours may be stabilised at 60°C but fade at lower temperatures.
- Avoid washing coloured garments with washing detergent that contains bleach.
- Do not overfill the washing machine. This can cause permanent creasing that is impossible to remove by ironing.
- After washing, garments should be stretched out before drying.
- The care instructions for some of our garments contain the words "Do not tumble-dry". Woollen garments must never be tumble-dried.
- Never tumble-dry at a temperature that is higher than the highest permitted washing temperature.
- Dark garments should ideally be ironed on the reverse side. This improves their appearance and eliminates shiny seams.

STAIN REMOVAL

- Try to remove the stain at once, while it is still "fresh", if you know what it is. Do not rub it in! It should be dissolved. Scrape it off if possible.
- Fat – Remove immediately with pure petrol, acetone or even methylated spirits using as little liquid as possible (risk of leaving rings).
- Blood – Remove immediately using cold water, and then hot water with biological detergent containing perborate.
- Coffee – Remove immediately with hot water and biological detergent containing perborate.
- Felt-tipped pen – Methanol or methylated spirits on a wad of cotton wool. Rinse with water.

FABRIC CONDITIONER

- Use fabric conditioner sparingly. Using too much can damage the textiles.

WHITE STAINS FROM HAND-DISINFECTANT

- The bindings in the thickening agent cannot be dissolved by normal, alkaline washing. It is therefore important to, prior to washing, soak the garment in an acidic solution (e.g. citric acid).
